A file manager is an application that helps you manage files and folders on that device as well as attached disks and even networked storage. File manager applications let you copy, view, edit, delete, or move files and folders. The first graphical file manager was introduced in 1983 on Apple's Lisa personal computer. While the Lisa was not a commercial success, its interface ushered in a new way of using a computer which included file management. The default file management app in Windows 10 is File Explorer. You can access File Explorer in several different ways in Windows 10. By default, the File Explorer app (a folder icon) is pinned to the taskbar. This is the fastest way to access File Explorer. Several other options include: Start Menu: Select Start, type File Explorer, and select the File Explorer desktop app.Run Command: Select Start, type Run, and select the Run desktop app. In the Run app, type Explorer and select OK.Start Right-Click: Right-click Start and select File Explorer. The File Explorer app in Windows 10 is one of the more functional file management apps offered by Microsoft. It includes several panes for browsing folders, managing files, and previewing file contents. The File Manager app in Mac is called Finder. It's always running on your Mac and, unless you changed the Mac's default behavior, it's the app the Mac starts up into. Linux operating systems have always had the reputation of being complicated to use. However in recent years, the Linux desktop environments are noticeably intuitive and come with their own file browser applications that rival Windows Explorer. Some default file administrators included in popular Linux distributions include: Dolphin: KDE Plasmathunar: XFCEPCMANFM: LXDECAJA: Matenautilus: Gnomememo: CinnamonPanTheon Files: Elementary OS The process to open the file manager in Linux varies from one operating system to another. However, Linux developers generally keep things similar to Windows experience. Therefore, you will usually find access to the file manager within a pseudo "start" menu, on the taskbar or on a desktop icon. While using an Android operating system above 5.0 (Lollipop), it comes with a default file manager. To open the application, just tap the File Manager app on your application list. The default Android file manager is very minimalist, but it is also very simple to use. If you only need a simple way to browse, copy, move or open files, it does the job well. When the iPhone came out, there was no file manager app (and it could not install one because the App Store had not yet been created). With iOS 11, Apple introduced a file application that could also access and manage local device files. Like the default Android file manager, it is a very basic app. But for the essential tasks of file management, it does good work. To open the application, just tap the file application from one of its on-screen. Thank you for letting us know! To qualify for unemployment, an individual who lost their job must be eligible for work, able to work and actively seeking employment. Without a doubt, the ongoing pandemic throws a bit of a wrench into the process of actively seeking work, so that component may vary from state to state and could change at any time. Texas, for example, waived their work search requirement for many months but reinstated it on November 1. If you lost your job due to the pandemic or other reasons, here are the steps to take next to file an unemployment claim online.Whether you were laid off because of the pandemic or lost your job due to other unforeseen circumstances, filing for unemployment benefits is one way to cover a portion of your monthly bills while youÁ ÁÁAre between jobs. Depending on the state you reside in, you will be eligible to apply for unemployment benefits online, in person, on the phone or by mailing in a claim form. Photo Courtesy: JGI/Tom Gril/Getty Images After youÁ ÁÁÁve lost your job, contact your state unemployment agency as soon as possible. In most cases, you will file a claim with the state where you most recently worked, but if you recently relocated from another state, that may not be the case. Long story short, where youÁ ÁÁAre currently residing might not be the state that will pay you unemployment benefits if you haven'tÁ ÁÁt lived there long. The state agency will provide guidance on that as well as any other issues that could impact your claim.Step 2: Determine Your EligibilityÁ Ás stated earlier, you need to meet certain criteria in order to be eligible for unemployment benefits. In some cases, people who were fired, suspended or asked to take a leave of absence don'tÁ ÁÁÁt qualify for unemployment. It depends on the reason you were fired, and the rules vary by state. Moreover, if you willingly quit your job, are an independent or otherwise self-employed, or can'tÁ ÁÁÁt go back to work for health or other reasons, you might not qualify. (Exceptions are currently in place to qualify independent contractors and the self-employed, but those rules expire at the end of 2020.) Photo Courtesy: Stefan Wermuth/Bloomberg/Getty Images Each state has different compliance requirements with respect to minimum wages and working hours, so we recommend consulting your stateÁ ÁÁÁs unemployment agency for details. Additionally, if your application is denied for any reason, you have the right to file an appeal to try to overturn the denial.Step 3: Verify Your IdentityDuring the initial application process, each stateÁ ÁÁÁs unemployment division will ask you to verify and authenticate your identity. These steps may take place as youÁ ÁÁÁAre filing your application, or they could be the last steps in determining your eligibility. Set up email notifications, if possible, and watch closely for any messages requesting additional information. These types of requests are typically very time sensitive.Á ÁÁ Photo Courtesy: Justin Sullivan/Getty Images In some cases, an unemployment official will interview you to clarify and verify details regarding your case and your identity. If you fail to answer the questions correctly cÁ ÁÁ or don'tÁ ÁÁÁt consent to this process cÁ ÁÁÁ you will most likely be asked to provide the agency with documents that verify your identity.Step 4: File Your ClaimOnce you confirm your eligibility, it'sÁ ÁÁÁs time to file your claim. Nearly all unemployment agencies accept claims online, especially in light of the COVID-19 pandemic. The online process isÁ ÁÁÁÁt just helpful for pandemic safety reasons. Virtual systems also reduce errors and speed up the claim process.
